Implementation and next steps

This section outlines the responsibilities, monitoring practices, and disciplinary procedures related to upholding a culture of inclusivity and preventing discrimination.

Responsibilities of Staff

Monitoring

Our disciplinary and grievances procedures

Fostering Inclusivity in every role in our day-to-day

Partners and Line Managers are responsible for ensuring compliance with this policy and taking steps to prevent discrimination within their teams. All staff share day-to-day responsibility for following the policy, upholding inclusivity, and reporting any discriminatory practices. Partners and LMs must ensure their teams understand the policy, address grievances promptly, and maintain a non-discriminatory environment.

The Chief of Staff monitors compliance, while all employees must take personal responsibility, avoid discriminatory actions, and notify management of any inappropriate behavior.

Ensuring progress through continuous oversight

The company will regularly monitor and review its policies to ensure compliance with equality, diversity, and inclusion standards. Information on staff involvement in key processes such as disciplinary, grievance, and harassment cases is maintained, and equality impact assessments will be conducted when necessary. If assessments show underrepresentation or lack of progress within certain workforce groups, an action plan will be created to address these gaps.

Additionally, the company will review recruitment, selection, and employment practices to remove any discriminatory elements and ensure alignment with current legal and regulatory standards. Regular workforce data monitoring also supports these efforts.

Setting standards through accountability

The company enforces a strict approach to breaches of the Diversity, Equity and Inclusion policy, which will be handled according to the Code of Conduct. This includes with whom an employee should raise a grievance – usually their Line Manager or the Chief of Staff. Serious violations, such as intentional discrimination, may result in dismissal for gross misconduct.
